“The Ghost of Hillary’s Deleted Emails”

Hello, this is your Congressman, Michael Burgess.

Newly uncovered letters have raised concerns that the Justice Department may have agreed to substantial and inappropriate limitations on the scope of its investigation into former Secretary of State Hillary Clinton’s emails.

The House Oversight and Government Reform Committee Chairman Jason Chaffetz, joined by other House and Senate leaders, have demanded information on the unusual restrictions placed on the FBI in its criminal investigation of Secretary Clinton’s private email server.

There should be no question that Secretary Clinton put our national security at risk. As the recent hack into the White House server shows, there is no doubt that this improvised, unauthorized and unsecured server, by the former Secretary of State, was compromised.

She took the unprecedented step of arranging to use her personal email account for all of her official email communications. She then took it further, deciding to use her own email server equipment, so that the records of this email account would reside solely within her personal control at home—which also allowed for her to destroy those emails on her own direction.

She used her secret email system to get around government transparency laws, which should ignite skepticism in the minds of all Americans.

My fear is that the American people will have become numb to the severity of Secretary Clinton’s negligent actions.

Just because immunity has been granted, it does not take away from the infractions that were committed. A person of this character, in my opinion, should not be allowed the privilege of serving as our next Commander in Chief.

As always, I appreciate your questions and your comments on this issue or any other issue. May God bless you and your family, and as the song says, God bless Texas.
